

BESIX is the largest Belgian construction group and belongs to the BESIX Group, a collection of companies active in the construction and real estate sectors

Founded in 1909, the company has known a regular and impressive growth to become the renowned international it is today. BESIX covers practically all the fields of the construction industry.

BESIX's most important know-how lies primarily in the use of concrete in

- complex marine engineering projects (quay walls, piers, jetties, breakwaters, etc),
- major building works (airports, hotels, office buildings, hospitals, etc) and
- large scale infrastructure projects (motorways, railways, tunnels, underground railways, bridges, etc).

Since 2003 BESIX Group's construction activities have been split into two business units:

The first business unit concentrates on major international construction activities, and consists mainly of BESIX and Six Construct.

The second, more regional business unit consists of the general contracting companies Wust, Jacques Delens, Vanhout and Lux TP. These concentrate their activities primarily on Belgium and the Grand-Duchy of Luxembourg.
